“Every day is a great day at The Parkview.”

Gayle and Rex, her cat, recently made the move to The Parkview. It was a good move for Gayle — and for her family, who know she is now getting the support she needs. At The Parkview, Gayle discovered:

- Private apartment living in a service-rich environment with three meals plus snacks every day and housekeeping
- Assistance as needed with everyday activities that have become difficult
- Medication management
- An engaging calendar of recreation, events, excursions and lifelong learning

Best of all, Rex was welcomed to The Parkview with open arms. Gayle says his favorite pastime is laying in her lap watching TV.

TIM TALK

Time for school district to ask — what if?

New discussions about the city’s proposed changes to this intersection should prompt the Pleasanton Unified School District to ask some important questions.

The Pleasanton school board, at its final 2019 meeting, heard a report of the options the city is considering to add a second left-turn lane at Bernal Avenue and First Street/Sunol Boulevard.

The city can either cut into the hillside on the south side and build major retaining walls or work out a deal with the district to cut down some trees and take some of its parking lot. The choice is obvious and should be a precursor to a broader discussion between the two agencies.

The block between Abbie/First/Bernal that the district owns is terribly under-utilized for such a valuable parcel. It’s devoted to the continuation school, the district office, some other offices and the district’s corporation yard, all in buildings that have been remodeled but date to the 1960s or earlier.

With the city expecting to restart the planning process for East Pleasanton after recently finishing updating its downtown specific plan, it’s a perfect time to ask “what if” facilities can be relocated and what kind of joint ventures can be planned with the city? The two agencies have different financial situations, but share the same clients — the citizens of Pleasanton.

The district office parcel would be attractive to developers who know people want to live within an easy stroll of downtown. The district also has the Vineyard Avenue school site that could figure in. It’s the wrong place for an elementary school, but would be ideal for upscale homes like the type of houses that surround it.

Trustees have placed another facilities bond on the ballot for March. It totals $323 million, potentially taking a bite out of the estimated $1.1 billion needed facilities upgrades or new construction identified in the district’s 2018 Facilities Master Plan.

This will maintain the same tax rate as two existing bonds that will be paid off in next year.

The measure did not promise specific projects, letting trustees and senior staff evaluate how to best spend the money should 55% of voters approve it in March.

In the public hearing, parents complained about the old facilities such as the Amador gym that dates to the 1970s. This measure will address facilities, but the looming elephant in the room is how to deal with the operating budget that continues to be squeezed by the soaring retirement contribution. All districts are part of the State Teachers Retirement System that the Legislature addressed in 2014 by approving a series of increases to bring it back toward financial stability.

State funding for schools has soared almost 50% since the low with the booming California coastal economy, but lots of it has been eaten up by these contributions. In addition, because of the agreement between the teachers union and the district that teachers would pay for their own benefits, the compensation package is not competitive with other Tri-Valley districts. And, Pleasanton receives the lowest per-student state rate.

Perhaps it’s time for Pleasanton trustees to consider a parcel tax that would be local money that can be spent locally.

That won’t necessarily be an easy sell, but it doesn’t matter how good the facilities are if the teachers don’t measure up.

If you could spend New Year’s Eve anywhere in the world, where would you spend it?

Carl Churilo
Retired
I would want to spend it anywhere in the world where my fiancée was. We met at a Starbucks, and I noticed she had some chocolate on her face. So I offered her a handkerchief, and it was the beginning of a beautiful relationship.

Jenny Lutz
Event coordinator
I would spend it in Dublin, California with all of my besties from high school. It is so unusual at this point in our lives for us to all be together in the same place at the same time. It would be such a thrill to ring in the new year with each and every one of them.

Ray Vincent
Warehouse manager
Oh, for sure it would be Disneyland. I have four children ranging in age from 12 to 18. Disneyland is a place where we always have a wonderful time together. We’ve been there several times, and it truly is the happiest place on Earth.

Jaime Lequin
Product manager
I would spend it up in Tahoe with my closest family and best friends, after a long and enjoyable day skiing at Homewood. I’ve been going there for years. It is my favorite resort on the West Shore.

Chris Gomez
Retail manager
I would spend it in New York City, and more specifically, Times Square. It has always been on my bucket list to do that. I’m sure I will get there some day.

Council supports allowing youth members to vote on city commissions

By JEREMY WALSH

Let the youth vote.

That was the message from the Pleasanton City Council last week as its majority endorsed a proposal to allow the youth member on four city commissions to receive a full voting position, just like the adult commissioners.

“If they’re there and they’re on the commission, they should be voting,” Councilwoman Julie Testa, a former Human Services Commission member, said during the Dec. 17 meeting. “I believe that they will work as hard as I did those first couple of years to understand it and make thoughtful decisions.”

Four city commissions currently have one youth member each (Parks and Recreation, Library, Civic Arts and Human Services), but the student member holds only an advisory position and doesn’t cast votes in commission business as the adult members do.

The city’s Youth Commission — a separate body comprised primarily of youth members, who all vote — set out earlier this year to change the situation for their peers on the other commissions.

The Youth Commission’s Public Policy Subcommittee presented the proposal to the four commissions. The Library, Civic Arts, and Parks and Recreation commissions all endorsed, but the Human Services Commission did not.

In a 5-2 decision among the adult members, the Human Services Commission voted to oppose the proposal for its body, with the majority reasoning the youth member who serves only one or two years would lack the experience to vote on the city’s complex housing and human services grant program — perhaps the commission’s most important task.

After that, the Youth Commission still opted to advance its original recommendation to the City Council, for the city to grant voting power to the youth member on all four commissions.

“We believe that the youth provide valuable points to the discussion and they can help the adult members consider different things,” Youth Commission member Keshav Patel told the council. “They are capable of learning on the go.”

“Our youth commissioners are some of the best and brightest in the city — they’re responsible, they’re actively engaged, they want to serve,” added Michelle Hertle, an adult member of the Library Commission.

“I trust them. Our Library Commission trusts them ... The question

Holiday tree pickup

Signups are underway for the annual Christmas Tree Pickup and Recycling Day next month benefiting Boy Scouts of America Troop 941 in Pleasanton.

Money raised by the effort is used to help buy camping equipment and fund the troop’s scouting activities such as weekend outings and their annual summer camp at Weste Scout Reservation.

The city’s Youth Commission will take place Jan. 4 between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m., and are restricted to Pleasanton addresses only; no locked or artificial trees. Register by Jan. 1. Visit www.Troop941.org.

For residents who miss out on the troop’s pickup, Pleasanton Garbage Service will start picking up Christmas trees on regular collection days, from Jan. 6 to learn more, call PG&S at 846-2042.

Baker in the race

Former Tri-Valley assemblywoman Catherine Baker is among the 22 people who applied to be appointed as Contra Costa County’s next head elections official.

The long list to replace disgraced former clerk-recorder Joe Camicia also includes a sitting Contra Costa County supervisor, several current and former city council members, multiple attorneys and three current employees of the department, among others.

Camicia, who boasted a long career in various elected offices, resigned in late October abruptly and without explanation — and a week later, he reached a deal with the Fair Political Practices Commission for using over $130,000 in campaign funds for personal expenses.

The Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors hope to meet to fill the appointment as soon as Feb. 4.

Committee seats

The Livermore Amador Transit Authority needs two alternates to serve on the Tri-Valley Accessible Advisory Committee.

LAVTA, which operates Wheels and Dial-A-Ride services in the Tri-Valley, is currently seeking applications to fill alternate vacancies on the committee for the cities of Dublin and Livermore; one resident as an alternate from each city is needed.

According to LAVTA, “committee members are expected to provide a forum and advise LAVTA staff on accessibility issues facing individuals with disabilities on LAVTA fixed route buses and Dial-A-Ride paratransit services.”

An application can be requested by calling 455-7335 or downloading one at www.wheelsbus.com. Applications should be submitted by Jan. 15. LAVTA’s Board of Directors approves the representatives.

Two Pleasanton teachers were recently recognized by SHAPE America for their outstanding contributions to health and fitness education to disabled students.

Diane Farthing and Cindi Chase, both longtime physical education teachers at Pleasanton Unified School District, are each up for national Teacher of the Year awards in the categories of adapted physical and health education, respectively.

Chase, who has taught adapted physical education for 17 years at several PUSD sites including Vintage Hills and Walnut Grove Elementary, and Farthing, a health educator at Amador Valley High School for 21 years, were nominated by their colleagues earlier this year.

Chase told the Weekly that the experience so far has been eye opening.

“That’s the honor, just to be recognized and to bring light to our field in adapted PE, specifically,” Chase said. “It’s opened doors and really provides opportunity for us through this journey to connect with people at a higher level that are impacting their state. I’ve already learned so much from others and hope some can learn some things from me.”

Chase’s area of specialty has a laser focus on teaching physical education to disabled students and her favorite part of her job is connecting them with their able-bodied or neurotypical peers through integrated classes and special events like the Special Olympics East Bay Track and Volleyball Tournaments in the spring, which she called a “whole school involvement” where she took charge of the track and field events.

“It’s a matter of connecting the students and watching them in that cooperative setting, so whether it’s dance or activities like relays, it really shows the kids helping each other and working towards one goal,” Chase said.

“It’s great to see our neurotypical peers helping and then seeing the abilities of our students and specialists.”

It’s those types of experiences that Chase hopes to create more often for the benefit of her students. “I want to make a meaningful impact on my students,” she said.

Farthing said her favorite part about her job is teaching “not activities but topics” that are challenging to dive into but need to be discussed, and using that knowledge to help students that are in crisis.

“When we talk about depression and suicide, it’s a difficult conversation. But I think we’re able to sometimes identify students that need support, and that comes out a lot through our classes, which is good,” Farthing said. “We help them realize there is help.”

With her role concentrated on helping students understand their overall physical, mental and emotional health, Farthing said that “our curriculum is set up a bit differently in that we have skills standards similar to physical education so trying to help students develop those skills to become more literate is a challenge.”

“We’re definitely striving to have our students leave with really strong skills like decision making, goal-setting,” she added. “That something that we’re striving for, that they’ll be able to advocate for their health and the health of others. That’s our challenge.”

Both Farthing and Chase will find out this spring whether they win the top honor. Farthing said just being nominated is worth celebrating and that “it’s an incredible honor to be acknowledged for how hard we work.”

“I think many teachers don’t get a lot of positives and this is huge to be acknowledged. There are people we respect and people who are experts in their field who want to say you’re doing a good job,” Farthing said. “Most teachers are pretty critical of themselves and are always trying to be better. It’s never good enough because there’s always something that you could do to reach one more student.”

MATHEW to serve as 2020 board president

Yee selected as vice president for next year

By JULIA BAUM

Trustees Steve Maher and Jamie Yee will take charge of leading the Pleasanton school board when the new year rings in next month.

At its Dec. 10 meeting — the board’s final regular meeting for 2019 — the Board of Trustees unanimously appointed Maher as the 2020 board president and Yee as vice president.

A Pleasanton Unified School District trustee since 2016, Maher is currently serving his first term, has extensive teaching and administrative experience at almost every PUSD site.

He also brings more than 40 years of insight to his new role, and serves on multiple Board-appointed committees, such as the City of Pleasanton Liaison Committee, PUSD Audit Committee, Alameda County School Board Association, Tri-Valley Educational Coalition and PUSD Board Facility Subcommittee.

Yee is currently serving her third term since first being elected in 2008; the district said that Yee

Another decade is rapidly nearing its end and Tri-Valley residents can go to Livermore’s Bankhead Theater on New Year's Eve to kiss 2019 goodbye in style with a special musical performance — some strings attached.

Local Americana, folk and bluegrass band Crawdad Republic will be bringing their vocally driven style to the Bankhead on New Year’s Eve for a special performance that will be followed by a reception in the theater's lobby.

“Expect a memorable night and a fantastic show. Quite simply, expect to have fun. Crawdad Republic is a group of young talented, homegrown artists always aiming to share their original art, heartfelt songwriting, and sense of humor with their audience,” band member Jonathan Williams told the Weekly. "You will laugh, you will cry, you will connect with these freshwater crustacean representatives.”

The Livermore local Crawdad Republic features Doug Allen on the keys, Dusty Boyle on the upright bass, Adam Elliott on the drums, Dave Haberman on the mandolin/guitar, Brandon Olivo on the banjo and Williams on the guitar/mandolin.

“Most of us were born and raised in Livermore, and we are very grateful for the community in the Tri-Valley, the following that supports us here. Playing venues like the Bankhead is always an honor, and we are humbled for the opportunity to play on New Year’s Eve,” Haberman said. “We have been playing together in different configurations since high school, however Crawdad Republic has been a band since about 2011.”

Haberman said that the band will treat attendees to a mixed blend of Crawdad Republic’s original music, featuring both early classics and more recent material. Most of the music will be original hits off of the band’s first two albums, “Crawdad Republic” and “Crawdad Republic II,” along with the possibility of some surprise covers.

Inspired by the likes of acclaimed singer-songwriter Jackson Browne and American funk group Vulfpeck, in addition to the “amazing community of artists” found locally, Crawdad Republic is currently recording its third album for fans, according to Haberman.

Following the performance, Crawdad Republic will meet to mix and mingle with fans during the Bankhead’s lively after-party, which will be held in the theater’s main lobby. At the party, attendees will be served complimentary sparkling wine and coffee, and can access a dessert buffet to sneak in some sweets before new year resolutions officially begin.

While the after-reception is expected to close out around 11 p.m., Bankhead marketing manager Roberta Emerson says local bars are located within steps of the theater and offer exciting opportunities for residents to ring in the new year and take a look back at auld lang syne.

New Year’s Eve with Crawdad Republic is scheduled to be held next Tuesday (Dec. 31), starting at 8 p.m. at the Bankhead Theater, 2400 First St. in downtown Livermore. Tickets range from $20 to $40 and can be purchased from the Bankhead ticket office, by calling 375-6800 or online at www.bankheadtheater.org.

Downtown restaurant red-tagged by county health department

By Jeremy Walsh

The Alameda County Environmental Health Department closed Alberto’s Cantina, a popular Mexican cuisine restaurant and bar in downtown Pleasanton, last week after an inspector found cockroaches — a routine assessment on Dec. 18, according to officials.

The restaurant at 435 Main St. was still red-tagged as of Monday morning, after failing a follow-up inspection on Friday due to the presence of these newly hatched cockroaches (also known as nymphs), according to Cynthia Bartus, supervising specialist of the county’s Environmental Protection Division.

Alberto’s has to remain closed until the major violation for vermin is corrected and cleared by the health department, according to Bartus.

“This is an unfortunate circumstance, and while we do not want business operators to be impacted, our mandate is the protection of public health,” she said. “Food facilities must be maintained in a sanitary condition. The presence of vermin in any food facility can contaminate food and utensils and is considered an imminent health hazard which warrants closure.”

The routine inspection on Dec. 18, which apparently occurred one day after a pest control company treated the restaurant, resulted in the discovery of “numerous dead cockroaches” and one live nymph onsite, a major violation that prompted the forced health closure, Bartus said.

There were dead cockroaches that contaminated the bar ice as well as were found on shelves in the kitchen, bar, dry storage area and restrooms, and those surfaces were not cleaned and sanitized, according to Bartus.

The inspector also found over a dozen minor violations, citing problems such as potential cross-contamination of uncovered food, cold food temperatures above 41 degrees Fahrenheit, no paper towels or soap at the kitchen hand-washing sink, possible use of an unapproved pesticide and operating permit not posted in public view, she said.

A county inspector returned to reassess the restaurant last Friday for possible reopening but discovered several live nymphs in the food preparation and hot water heater areas, Bartus said. As a result, Alberto’s remained closed as of Monday morning.

The restaurant could also face another issue related to the red placard itself.

The red-tag notice posted by the county inspector on Dec. 18 was not clearly visible affixed to the front window on Friday morning but was displayed in plain view early Friday afternoon. The county inspector arrived onsite around noon to find the red placard facing outward as it should have been, and it was unclear to them if it had been moved, Bartus said.

It is a violation to remove, obscure or tamper with the placards posted by county health officials.

Impeachment rally

In national news, the U.S. House of Representatives voted last week to impeach President Donald Trump on two articles (abuse of power and obstruction of Congress) related to allegations that Trump pressured Ukrainian officials to investigate 2020 U.S. presidential candidate Joe Biden and his son ahead of the election. The primarily party-line vote in the Democrat-controlled House came a day after protests in downtown Livermore (shown) and San Ramon were among those in the Bay Area and nationwide on Dec. 17 in support of impeachment proceedings. The case will now head to the Republican-controlled Senate for trial.

Like Maher and the rest of the board, Yee also sits on several committees: the City of Pleasanton Economic Vitality Committee, PUSD Board Facility Subcommittee, PUSD Audit Committee (as an alternate), and the Tri-Valley Education Coalition.

Superintendent David Haglund shared his appreciation for Trustee Valerie Arkin’s leadership as board president in 2019 in an announcement last week.

“Would like to extend my personal thanks to Trustee Arkin for her leadership this past year as board president,” Haglund said. “Our staff, students and community have benefited greatly from the countless additional hours you have dedicated to ensuring PUSD continues to support our mission — that our students will go on to make a better world.”

Maher and Yee will assume their new roles at the board’s first meeting of the new year on Jan. 14.
Details revealed in LVJUSD lawsuit against vaping company

Case alleges JUUL uses unethical marketing strategies to target teens

By Ryan J. Degan

While various government agencies work to counter the use of e-cigarette use among teenagers, officials from the Livermore Valley Joint Unified School District have decided to take the fight directly to its source, filing a lawsuit against San Francisco-based vaping giant JUUL Labs.

Filed by the school district in federal court on Dec. 16, the 82-page lawsuit claims that the e-cigarette manufacturer uses unethical marketing tactics that target underage users, promoting use so some say has reached epidemic proportions.

In addition to the LVJUSD, the San Francisco Unified School District, Cabrillo Unified School District, San Mateo-Foster City School District and Jefferson Union High School District had filed litigation as of Dec. 16.

“We still do not know the extent of vaping’s health consequences for our kids, but we know the results are serious,” LVJUSD Superintendent Kelly Bowers said. “Educators see the impact of Juul’s teen-focused marketing efforts firsthand every day. Our schools must hold Juul accountable for misleading the children we serve.”

In the lawsuit the school district alleges Juul’s marketing strategy, advertising, and product design targets minors, especially preteens and teenagers, and has and will continue to increase the likelihood that minors, like the students in the district, will begin using e-cigarettes and become addicted to tobacco products and this will cause further harm.

“JUUL’s ‘marketing strategy’ is to provide audiences with an experience as if they were sitting in the best seats in the house. From close-ups that capture every flicker of emotion, to sweeping wide shots of the stage, the goal is to provide audiences with an experience that is the next best thing to actually being there. COUNCIL
tonight is: Do you trust your youth commissioners to make good decisions on behalf of their community?" Human Services Commissioner Mike Scellad said he recognizes the hard work of the commission’s youth members, but the nonprofit grant process requires “a commissioner’s seasoned judgment to make a determination as to the level of funding, if funded at all.”

“They request undercuts the need to become familiar with the complete needs of the agencies that the Human Services Commission considers funding for through the grant process,” he told the council. “Two years and out is not the long-term commitment that the human services commissioners sign up for.”

The council majorly supported the recommendation to give the youth member a vote on all four commissions.

“The comment was made that some of the youth commissioners, they only serve a year or two. If you’re an adult and you become a member of this commission, do you vote the first year even though you’ve only served a partial year? And you also vote the second year?” Councilwoman Karla Brown asked, rhetorically.

Mayor Jerry Thorne added, “Commissions aren’t final decision-makers. The commissions recommend to the City Council, and (we) make that final decision. So if there’s a problem with a vote … then the commissions could come talk to the council itself.”

Councilman Jerry Pentin dissented, saying he thought the council should respect the Human Services Commission’s recommendation. “I think when you take a commission that has asked not to give voting power to the (youth) commissioner, we have to listen. We’re not listening.”

The council voted 4-1 to approve the introduction and first reading of the ordinance to implement the youth vote. The second reading and final adoption is scheduled for the Jan. 21 council meeting.

As part of their support, the council majority asked that the four commissions report back in one year about the impact of the youth member voting. The proposal does not change the commissions’ quorum requirements, but that could be reconsidered in a year.

In other businesses
- The council gave unanimous support to an ordinance creating strict penalties for unauthorized destructive acts or alterations of buildings designated as historic in Pleasanton.

The new regulations include a maximum fine for unpermitted work based on the replacement cost or the appraised value — whichever amount is greater — of the affected part of the historic building, before demolition or alteration, as deter-mind by a licensed appraiser selected by the city.

In practice, the ultimate fine amount in each case would be determined by the city’s community development director, based on the range from $50 up to the maximum.

The other key penalty would be restrictions on future redevelopment at the site, meaning the owner could not reconstruct with a new building that exceeds the existing building, floor-area ratio, height or placement onsite as the demolished original structure for 20 years.

In an associated resolution, the council approved an update to the city’s purchasing procedures and manual to allow the city to cancel contracts with businesses that violate the Pleasanton Municipal Code, including the new rules for historic buildings.

The new regulations were inspired by the case of an historic house on Second Street being fully demolished this summer — when the owner only had permits to tear down the back portion. While investigating that incident, officials realized the city code had no provisions specifically about unpermitted work on historic buildings.

- The council endorsed a property owner’s proposal to tear down the former Denny’s restaurant building at 6455 Owens Drive and replace it with a larger commercial building with multiple tenants. The project parcel, with the rundown restaurant building left vac-cant since Denny’s moved out about four years ago, is situated between Johnson Court and the Larkspur Landing hotel, next to the often-crowdded driveway to Chick-fil-A and a short block from the busy Owens Drive-Hoppyard Road intersection.

Owner Abbas Mash plans to demolish the old restaurant and construct a single rectangular building at 10,980 square feet with five commercial tenants, with an intended to be a restaurant and the others some form of retail or commercial business.

Last week city approved the city loaning $732,548 to the Hacienda Business Park Owners Association to renovate certain landscaped areas in street medians and other public right-of-way in Hacienda that the association is required to maintain.

The landscaping has fallen into very poor condition from drought impacts, deferred maintenance and other reasons, and with Hacienda lacking the necessary funds to repair the entire project upfront, city staff sees the loan as the most efficient and expedient way to get the needed improvements completed, assistant city manager Britt Dolan said.

The work will involve replacing plants, increasing plant density, replacing lost trees and installing landscaping that complies with the city’s water-use and landscape ordinance.

A 10-year loan with 2.72% annual interest, the $732,548 agreement will be paid out of the city’s Downtown and North Pleasanton Reserve Fund, which is comprised of unused proceeds from the North Pleas-ton Improvement District.

The council vote was 3-2. Brown dissented in opposition to using public funds for a large loan to a private entity that could potentially be a bank loan or a special assessment. Testa said she couldn’t support without provisions to allow the city to impose penalties if Hacienda’s public landscaping deteriorates again in the future.

- Council members signed off on the mayor’s recommendations for assigning his colleagues to various committees, boards and liaison pos-tions for 2020. Among them was Councilwoman Kathy Narum being named vice mayor for the year.

- The council approved a nine-item special calendar, which included a $249,985 contract with Cascadia Consulting Group for services related to updating the city’s Climate Action Plan, and two contracts with Jeff Katz Architecture — $42,000 for construction support for the library office and storage remodel and $12,500 for a privacy needs assess-

All were unanimous, except Brown dissented for the item that renominated former councilman Arne Olson to serve as Pleasanton’s representative on the Alameda County Housing Commissions Housing Authority. She argued the position should have been more visibly recru ted in the public.

Teens arrested for brazen burglary on video in Vintage Hills

Pleasanton police announced last Friday that three teenagers have been arrested in connection with the high-profile crime from September in which masked burglars kicked in the front door of a Vintage Hills house while the homeowner and her young sons were inside — with it all caught on camera.

The boys, already lead suspects in a similar crime in Fremont, were booked into a juvenile detention facility on suspicion of residential burglary for the Pleasanton incident.

The case was forwarded to the Alameda County District Attorney's Office for review for formal charges within the past week, according to Pleasanton police Sgt. Steve Ayers.

The arrests’ names were not released because they are under age, but Ayers said there were two 17-year-olds and one 15-year-old.

The case was put in the national spotlight back in September after Ring doorbell-security video of the burglars kicking in the front door with the family inside was shown across news media and went viral.

The original breach occurred around 8:30 a.m. on Sept. 11 at a house on Burgundy Drive while one of the homeowners was upstair showering and her 9-year-old son was playing downstairs.

She told news outlets at the time she'd heard her dogs growling and a loud commotion before the masked burglars broke in. They were scared away after she started yelling at them, likely because they were not expecting anyone to be home. Although the door was damaged, nothing was taken from the home.

The homeowners shared the video footage with police, and it was also posted on social media. Detectives working to identify and apprehend the culprits also alerted neighboring law enforcement agencies about the case, Ayers said.

The case against the boys was completed for DA's office review on Dec. 13, Ayers said.

In other news

• A man was sentenced to two days in jail and three years of probation after pleading no contest in the fall to misdemeanor vehicular manslaughter for causing the all-terrain vehicle crash that killed a Tri-Valley native at a state-operated park near Pismo Beach in June, prosecutors confirmed last week.

• Oscar Renteria Corchado, now 35, also was ordered to complete 300 hours of community work service and pay a $300 fine for his misdemeanor conviction in San Luis Obispo County Superior Court on Oct. 28, according to assistant district attorney Eric Dobroth.

Corchado was identified early on as the at-fault driver in the ATV collision at Oceano Dunes State Vehicle Recreation Area that killed 37-year-old Shawn Joseph Inmig, a Brentwood man who was born in Livermore and spent parts of his life living in Pleasanton as well as Livermore.

An avid outdoorsman, Inmig died from injuries he sustained when, while riding an ATV on a dune on the evening of June 22, he was struck in the helmet by a recreational off-highway vehicle (ROV) that went airborne after reaching the top of the dune, California State Parks officials reported at the time.

State Parks rangers initially arrested Corchado on suspicion of fatal DUI, alleging he was drunk and speeding at the time of the crash, but further investigation led the San Luis Obispo County DA's Office to not file DUI-related charges — though Dobroth did not elaborate on the evidentiary reasons for that decision.

Prosecutors instead charged Corchado with one misdemeanor count of vehicular manslaughter without gross negligence on Aug. 8. After his no contest plea on Oct. 28, Corchado was also ordered to pay restitution to Inmig's family. A restitution status determination hearing is scheduled for Jan. 29, Dobroth said.

• A state judicial commission last week publicly admonished Alameda County Superior Court Judge Morris Jacobson for misconduct that included hitting a defense attorney on the hand in 2011.

The public admonition by the San Francisco-based Commission on Judicial Performance was also for a second count of using crude and inappropriate language when telling a female court administrator in 2016 about sexual misconduct by a Texas judge two decades earlier.

Jacobson agreed to the commission’s decision on both counts and agreed not to seek review of his case by the California Supreme Court.

According to facts agreed to by Jacobson, he hit the hand of a deputy public defender on June 29, 2011, after he called her up to the bench to apologize for having spoken sharply to her during an arraignment.

Jacobson's lawyer, Edith Matthai, said the judge agreed to and stands by the stipulated language that he “hit her hand, and inadvertently talked to the plaintiff to leave a visible impression.”

But the attorney said, "As his counsel I can say that the stipulated language was not intended to convey that there was any assault. Neither Judge Jacobson nor I believe it is appropriate to assault anyone.”

The admonition is the third time the commission has rebuked Jacobson.

WHAT A YEAR
A look at 2019 stories shows Pleasanton at its planning finest

BY DOLORES FOX CARDIELI
Pleasanton’s secret sauce is its planning, and a look back at Pleasanton Weekly stories from 2019 illustrates this as the city bought property adjacent to the Firehouse Arts Center, OK’d the updated Downtown Specific Plan, and adopted a work plan of priorities for the next two years. The school district continued to look ahead to accommodating increasing student populations as well as dealing with aging facilities and voted to put a $323 million bond measure on the March ballot to fund upgrades.

Projects came to fruition this year, too, including opening the new youth agricultural center at the fairgrounds, completed upgrades at the aquatic center locker rooms and solar panels at the Amador Valley parking lot.

And 2019 saw its share of happenings.

Pleasanton was the scene of its 125th anniversary of its incorporation. December.

The year began and ended being impacted by the weather — some flooding early in the year, PG&E outages in October, and the annual holiday parade being canceled in December.

A big event for Pleasanton was the 125th anniversary of its incorporation, and the city celebrated with two months of special events during the summer and a big party downtown.

Happy Birthday to Pleasanton, goodbye to 2019, and welcome, 2020!

What a year for the Chamber of Commerce

By Herb Ritter

Wow! The Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce had a fantastic year. It has been an honor to serve as the 2019 chair of the Chamber board, and to be a “Best Volunteer” in the world.

I want to thank the amazing staff and the Board of Directors for their tireless efforts in helping to support the 725-plus active members and the residents.

Check out some of the many 2019 accomplishments — it was a fantastic year!

1. Women’s Business Luncheon to learn from and celebrate local women leaders. (Sold out!)
2. Establishment of the “Chair Crew” committee of past Chamber chairs with over 56 years of Pleasanton Chamber experience.
3. Reinroduced a strong marketing campaign, including banners, branding clothing and a video demonstrating the “Value Proposition” of being part of the Chamber.
4. Elevated the “Circle of Influence” business members with a private breakfast with the city manager, mayor and city leaders.
5. Encouraged and promoted diversity amongst the board and local business members.
6. In addition to introducing new members at the monthly mixers, introduced and promoted select “longtime” Chamber members. (Some have been members over 50 years!)
7. Introduced and promoted a philanthropic organization at each of the monthly mixers to complement the 2019 Community Service Awards, which was the 56th annual.
8. Introduced a new “Chamber Mission Statement” for 2019 “The Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce for our members will be:
   • The catalyst for business and economic growth
   • The convener of leaders and influencers
   • The champion for a stronger and healthy community.”
9. Updated and expanded the Chamber’s “Business Community Vision” to 2023
10. Introduced an organization chart to show the many benefits and opportunities to serve with the Chamber of Commerce.

11. Last but not least had a record-breaking year with membership growth by asking “prospective members” to learn more about the chamber.
   • Special thanks to the extremely energized ambassadors and staff.
   Thank you all for your support in 2019. Happy Holidays! Editor’s note: Herb Ritter served as the chair of the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors for 2019. Ritter, owner of Ritter Investments LLC, is also a member of the city of Pleasanton’s Planning Commission.

Bad advice

Dear Editor,

I was very disappointed when I read your Dec. 6 article “Tips for a merry holiday home” and the first suggestion was to have a fire in your home fireplace.

There are so many warnings and health recommendations not to have fires in your home for health and environmental reasons. It would seem you could suggest using gas log systems that are safe and a healthier option. It is very upsetting when you just open your door and the smoke from other homes engulfs your home.

Just a thought to keep our ourselves and our planet healthy.

Impinchment can’t wait

It’s time for members of the GOP to find their voice, break ranks with Trump, and demand his impeachment and removal. History will remember how Republicans voted in this moment — whether they upheld the rule of law or fearfully supported the criminal in the White House.

For three years, we have watched Trump threaten our elections, obstruct justice and make a mockery of our Constitution. The latest news of Trump’s solicitation of foreign election interference in the 2020 election is a serious escalation of his corruption and abuse of power.

Thanks to multiple whistleblower and witness testimony from at least half a dozen witnesses in the House’s impeachment inquiry, we know that Trump pressured the president of Ukraine to dig up dirt on the Bidens. He then threatened to withhold military aid to force Ukraine to comply.

Poll after poll demonstrates that the American people are sick and tired of Trump’s assault on our democracy — and we’re urging Republicans to support the only viable way to hold him accountable for his actions: impeachment and removal.

Failing to check Trump’s abuse of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of power would send a signal to this lawless president that he’s free of

Daft theory of foreign interference

The catchphrase “Trump asked Ukraine to interfere in our election” is highly loaded with speculation, assumption and partisan perspective.

Since when is bringing out adverse publicity about one’s opponent’s ‘election interference’? Are the details of the Biden-Burisma relationship now something the American public is not entitled to know? What makes the Dems think the 2020 election would be tipped by knowing these details?

It might help Biden. Or, Biden might not be the nominee. Congress makes the law regulating campaigning behavior, and what Trump did in his phone call was clumsy and out of shape — lacking diplomatic finesse — but nothing illegal.

A competitive infospace leading up to elections can never be labeled as an attempt to interfere, so long as the info is obtained legally, is true and is not tainted by foreign money.
