It's been said many times but it's never truer than during the holiday season....Downtown Pleasanton is the heart of our vibrant town.

While there are endless reasons why you should shop, dine and do business in downtown regularly, here are five reasons why you should commit to shopping local and supporting downtown Pleasanton this holiday season!

1. You don't have to travel far.

By shopping local you don't have to travel far! By shopping in Downtown Pleasanton you can park once and hit a huge variety of stores in a single trip. This is particularly nice if you have small children.

2. You don't have to battle the lines at major retailers.

Shopping local means that you won't have to battle crowded stores and wait in long lines. You can spend your time exploring the store and thinking about the right gift, not standing in line.

3. You can get help from the shop owners.

Have you ever tried to get help finding a gift in a big box store? They're helpful if you're looking for something specific, but not if you don't know what you're looking for. Small businesses owners-know their stock well and can help you choose the perfect gift, not just find it.

4. The money you spend stays in your community.

When you spend money locally it stays local. That money goes back into the community in taxes, rent and in other ways that help keep our community thriving.

5. You can find amazingly unique gifts.

At shops in Downtown Pleasanton you can find some great unique items that aren't available at the big box stores. Explore and you'll find some truly one of a kind creations.

If you can't commit to spending your entire holiday budget locally, commit to just one day! Come to Downtown on Saturday, November 22nd for Magical Holiday Evening, 4pm-7pm. If we could all commit to at least one day of purchasing from local small businesses then we could really make a difference in our community! Want to see all downtown has to offer? Visit www.pleasantondowntown.net for a full business directory. We'll see you downtown!

Celebrate the Season.

Thoughts of health, happiness and hope fill the air during the winter months. To me, it serves as a reminder to stop, look around and appreciate the fantastic community that surrounds us. Living in the Tri-Valley is a gift.

Wishing you all the joys of the season and happiness throughout the coming year.

Shop Small in Pleasanton this coming holiday season!

First there was Black Friday, then Cyber Monday. For a fifth year, there is also Small Business Saturday. Small Business Saturday, November 29th this year, is the day we celebrate the Shop Small movement to drive shoppers to local merchants in Pleasanton and across the country. Numerous organizations, states, cities and corporate sponsors have already joined American Express in declaring the Saturday after Thanksgiving as Small Business Saturday. In Pleasanton, the City is collaborating with Pleasanton Downtown Association, Visit Tri-Valley, Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce and Hacienda to encourage merchants to participate in Small Business Saturday by using free business tools to market their stores and shoppers to not only shop in Pleasanton but consider shopping "small" to support our local businesses.

Why shop in Pleasanton? Buying locally ensures our city stays extraordinary and the place to go. Local merchants get to know our local tastes and select merchandise with the local community in mind. You get personal attention. You feel connected. Our businesses make us special and give us a strong sense of loyalty for our city. The more unique we are as a community, the more we attract visitors, which benefits everyone. Shopping locally also keeps dollars in our economy. When we support our local businesses, our sales taxes are reinvested right here in Pleasanton. For every $100 spent at an independently owned Pleasanton store, $46 stays in the community. That makes Pleasanton extraordinary!

Buying locally is more environmentally friendly too. When we shop in Downtown Pleasanton or at our local neighborhood shopping center, it often means that you can walk or bike to shop, supporting conveniently located and accessible shops. You also get products that are often better made because our neighborhood stores stand behind them.

Want to know where to go to shop in Pleasanton? Visit inPleasanton.com for all your shopping and dining needs. For more information on Small Business Saturday and locate participating businesses, visit shopsmall.com. Help make November 29th the Biggest Day of the Year for small business in Pleasanton!

A CAMERA IN A PLASTIC BAGGY??

I was out hiking the Pleasanton Ridge with a friend of mine when suddenly we were facing a herd of cows! He said, "I have got to get some video of these cows as they maneuver through this trail" and then reached into his backpack and pulled out a plastic baggy he used to store his GoPro action camera and some other accessories. I said, "You store your $300 camera and $200 worth of accessories in that?" His camera was all scratched up and I couldn't believe he hadn't crushed some of the more sensitive stuff like the wireless remote. We had a good laugh over this and he got some funny video that his kids had to watch over and over for the rest of the night!

Later I asked him about the lack of carrying case for his investment and he mentioned he'd received the camera as a gift and bought the accessories separately online and at the time thought his money was better spent on accessories than a case. Though after looking at the condition of his camera and the remote he agreed with me that keeping things in plastic baggy was probably not a good long-term solution.

That conversation led to the start of TrioSportsUSA and the Best GoPro Camera Case. The tough ballistic cloth outer shell is treated to be water resistant, while the waterproof double zipper keeps the interior dry. The custom cut foam inserts protects your camera and accessories from even the roughest handling and can be configured to store many types of action cameras and those important accessories. Our case is so tough one of our customers even accidentally ran over it with his boat, with no water leakage or damage to the camera and other contents!

The case is on sale now, go to Amazon.com and search for TrioSportsUSA GoPro Case or visit our website at www.triosportsusa.com.

Infuse something new into your holidays

This season, give your family the world — without breaking the bank

Everyone has special holiday traditions, from heirloom decorations to secret recipes passed down from generation to generation.

Whether your holiday celebration means an intimate family gathering or an elaborate house-filled party, why not add something new to your festive mix? Many authentic holiday traditions are just a grocery-store-trip away — and you may discover a new family favorite from a faraway land.

Adding some international flair to your holidays can be easy, enjoyable and educational — an opportunity to feed minds young and old during the school break.

The whole family can get in on the experience: young children can learn holiday phrases from the countries whose foods you are featuring, and teach other guests. Older children can head to the library to get international holiday music, adding another dimension to the new experience. Those preparing the goodies should also be prepared to share some history about what they are serving.

Money-saving advice author Cindy Livesey said there are some smart shopping strategies that add festive flair to her family's celebrations. Here are her tips on bringing the world to your holiday table without breaking the bank.

1. Start simple — with cookies!

Why not try Christmas cookies from the country that started the tradition of the Christmas tree? Gingerbread lovers will adore Pfeffernusse; these German spice cookies are so popular in Germany, they have their own holiday on Dec. 23. Make these small, round cookies from scratch or pick up a ready-made pack from the grocery store, Livesey said.

2. Start saving before the holidays.

It pays to be prepared for the indulgent holiday season. Keep an eye on sales and specials leading up to your celebration and stock up on international ingredients. Combining seasonal coupons with sales can help stretch holiday budgets.

3. Drink up some new flavors.

Make your international menu more interesting by trying a new spice or type of produce. To capture some festive Mexican flair, add a little cayenne pepper to hot chocolate — you probably have both of those in your pantry right now.

A nice fruit punch (with or without rum) adds unexpected tropical fun, channeling a Caribbean Christmas. "Keep frozen mango and other fruits in your freezer so you can add them to

How to simplify holiday shopping this year

Does the prospect of holiday shopping make you dance with joy, or tremble with dread?

Americans seem pretty evenly split into both categories, a CBS News poll found last year.

Love it or hate it, holiday shopping has to happen — the National Retail Federation says more than 90% of Americans celebrate Christmas, Hanukkah or Kwanza. So why not take some steps to streamline your holiday shopping, and make it as easy and cost-effective as possible?

Plan early, and firmly

Even if you love it, last-minute, directionless holiday shopping can create stress. That's why for some American shoppers, the holiday shopping season starts as early as Sept. 30.

Start by making a holiday shopping list as early as possible. Your list should include every person you have to shop for, a budget allotment for his or her gift, and at least two good gift ideas. Be sure to include a few generic items that can work as reciprocation for unexpected gifts you receive, or for anyone who may slip your mind until the last minute.

Once you have a plan and budget in mind, stick to it. While some flexibility can help you take advantage of a great deal, sticking to a plan can help you avoid overspending — and ensure no one goes without this holiday season.

Timing is everything

Certain items will be deeply discounted on Black Friday, such as home goods and everyday items like coffee makers and cameras.

Other items — like electronics and even cars — are likely to go on sale as the end of the year approaches and sellers strive to clear out lingering 2014 inventory to make room for incoming 2015 products.

Research when a particular item you want is likely to go on sale. You might even be able to find a friendly sales clerk who will alert you to an upcoming sale.

While Black Friday will always be a great deal-finding day for stoic shoppers willing to brave the crowds, Cyber Monday is also a good time to find hassle-free deals. The Monday after the long Thanksgiving weekend traditionally yields great prices on clothing, home goods and electronics for online shoppers.

And anyone looking to add some items to their collection of holiday decorations will find the best prices — albeit fewer choices — immediately after the holidays.

Be utterly shameless

Whatever will make holiday shopping easier and more enjoyable for you, do it — shamelessly.

If it's easiest to buy gift cards for everyone on your list, have at it; virtually every online and brick-and-mortar retailer now offers gift cards. Put them in a pretty package or simply hand them over in an envelope, gift cards remain one of the most-desired holiday gifts.

Be shameless about negotiating and taking advantage of shopping incentives like free shipping. While many online retailers already offer free shipping on holiday orders, you have nothing to lose by asking for it if a merchant doesn't offer it. ■

SMALL BUSINESS SATURDAY.

NOV 29

COME IN AND SHOP SMALL[®]

We encourage Pleasanton businesses and shoppers to participate this year in Small Business Saturday* on November 29th.

Shop Small this holiday season and support our local businesses!

shopsmall.com #ShopSmall

 Small Business Saturday is a day dedicated to supporting small businesses that create jobs, boost the economy and preserve neighborhoods around the country during one of the busiest shopping times of the year. Founded by American Express in 2010, this day is celebrated every year on the Saturday after Thanksgiving.*

Back to basics

Gifts that inspire the imagination

Though it may seem that all of the high-demand gift items this season require batteries and a level of tech savvy only the younger generation can boast, there are actually many great options that let you encourage the kids on your list to get back to basics and get unplugged.

According to research by Common Sense Media, kids under eight spend nearly two hours of every day on screen time — that is, using a tablet, computer or mobile device, watching TV, etc. While some of that usage is dedicated to educational games and content, the prevalence of media use among kids is distracting them from one of childhood's greatest gifts: the freedom to let their imaginations soar.

Kids whose imaginative play is fostered and supported show numerous health and developmental advantages, ranging from increased levels of fitness and coordination to higher self-esteem and an improved ability to apply the information they learn.

This holiday season, look for gifts that inspire kids to embrace pretend play:

Blocks

It doesn't get much more basic than building blocks when it comes to setting the imagination free.

Skip the sets that come with specific instructions and opt instead for blocks that encourage free-form play and construction. Small and mid-sized plastic pieces let kids create miniature versions of nearly anything their minds can conjure.

On the flip side, jumbo cardboard blocks let children create environments they can physically engage with, such as life-size playhouses.

Figurines

There are many figurines and customizable accessories and environments available to tickle kids' imagination. From auto service stations and race tracks to dollhouses and pet boutiques, little ones can explore and create for hours.

Dress up

Whether you assemble a collection of whimsical treasures from thrift shops or rely on the costumes and sets available at retail stores, clothing that allows a child to adopt a new persona is an instant way to encourage the imagination.

Costumes depicting familiar characters let kids act out their favorite screen-time scenes in real life, while a unique mish-mash of items lets them create unique scenarios to explore.

Books

Good old-fashioned books help expose kids to new worlds. Choose-your-own-adventure books, in which the reader helps direct the flow of the story line, are a great choice for engaging kids directly as they imagine their way through the story line. More traditional books introduce concepts, characters and scenarios that provide hours of play as kids act out the new ideas they discover.

Crafting sets

From create-your-own jewelry to color-to-complete playhouses and spaceships, crafty gifts let kids explore their artistic side and experiment with creating tangible representations of their imagination. You can choose from prepackaged sets at many retailers, or crafting stores provide a diverse selection of unfinished items to pair with the appropriate tools.

Toys and games that encourage pretend play let kids create, explore and imagine in a stress-free environment where they set the rules and boundaries. These gifts, which encourage kids to unplug and embrace a whole new world of wholesome play, are the kind you can feel truly great about giving. ■

—Family Features

A Gift That Keeps Giving

Encouraging kids to explore the world and learn through imaginative play has numerous benefits for their overall well-being. Giving gifts that encourage kids to use their imagination helps boost numerous long-term development skills.

Social development

Creating characters and scripting scenes, whether alone or through play with others, teaches a child to consider other perspectives and fosters the growth of empathy and understanding.

Language

Being allowed to create their own play environment, versus those delivered on a screen, forces children to rely on their vocabulary and practice using the words they've learned both informally and formally. Solitary play offers the benefit of allowing a child to practice these skills, while pretend play with peers encourages clear and effective communication with others.

Problem-solving

It's never too early for a child to begin developing cognitive thinking skills that allow them to effectively trouble-shoot and resolve problems. Even a simple play activity, such as contemplating what items from the dress-up drawer should be packed for an imaginary vacation, lets a little one begin to understand how to identify a challenge and create meaningful solutions.

Relationships

Playing with others is a natural way for kids to forge meaningful bonds with other children, and with the adults in their lives. Imaginary play nurtures and lets children practice critical relationship-building skills such as communication. What's more, interacting through pretend play gives kids a shared experience that shapes a bond with their partner in play.

punch even when they're not in season," Livesey said.

4. Assign each family member a part of the menu.

The cost burden of a big family dinner can easily be lifted by sharing the cooking responsibilities. Choose an international region and assign different dishes to different family members — and decoration-making to young ones.

When it's time to eat, the meal will be complete because the family is together, and there will be plenty to talk about as each person proudly explains his or her contribution.

"Some of the best gifts really are free, and sharing something new as a family is one of those gifts," Livesey said.

It's easy to experience the holidays from around the world without emptying your wallet. Spice up the traditional and try something new with an international affair. You might discover a completely new tradition that will have your family celebrating together for years to come. ■

Home for the holidays

As a Pleasanton resident I consider it an honor to work where I live. When the Yamamoto Family contacted me to help them sell their home and find a new one in Pleasanton, I was thrilled. With professional preparation and marketing their townhome sold quickly. But, it took a while to locate their new home as inventory was slim and they only wanted a specific Pleasanton neighborhood. I pursued all avenues by door knocking specific streets, sending mass mailings and even delivering handwritten notes upon hearing about a house that fit their criteria. It was one of those notes that led us to be able to purchase an off-market home in Pleasanton Meadows.

Please let me know if I can help you find your next home. It is my goal, in every transaction, that you Love Where You Live.

Perfecting the holiday dinner party

Five tips for an elegant, effortless evening for the ages

Some might call the dinner party a lost art, but gathering family and friends around the table to eat great food, drink fantastic wine and enjoy each other's company is the perfect way to celebrate the holidays. Creating an elegant, effortless evening to remember is easier than one might think.

Perfecting the dinner party is about putting people at ease and creating an environment that encourages conversation and laughter — the two most important elements of a successful dinner party.

So, instead of trying to impress guests with fancy culinary skills or decorating prowess, focus on five simple tips:

1. Light can be the life of the party

From glowing centerpieces to sparkling votive candles, elegant party lighting is always a bright idea. Candles set the mood and create ambiance — and allow your guests to truly shine.

2. Let the wine flow

The right wine can perfect the moment and no dinner party would be complete without it. Greet guests with a bright and beautiful sparkling rose and keep it flowing during the cocktail hour.

During dinner, offer one red and one white wine. Chianti and Pinot Grigio are two delicious options with wide appeal.

3. Of course dessert is a food group!

Dessert is the perfect way to end an amazing meal. Leave your guests floating on air with angel food cake topped with a Prosecco-infused frosting.

4. Don't let guests leave empty-handed

Giving guests a little something to take home when they leave extends the good vibes. Say good-night in a unique way by sending guests home with a bottle of wine or votive candle to re-create the magic in their own home.

5. Remember to breathe

If you're having fun, your guests will too. Take a deep breath and, while you're at it, give your red wine a little air, too. Aerators open up the aromas and flavors, making every sip better. ■

Holiday survival guide

Quick tricks to eliminate hassles and headaches

'Tis the season for family gatherings, dinner parties, gift exchanges and the sound of laughter coming from around the table.

With the hustle and bustle surrounding the holidays, finding ways to reduce stress can help you survive the season. Here are six simple tips that will help your holidays go from hectic to holly and jolly, with even a little time left over to relax before your guests start arriving.

Clean sweep your to-do list

Getting a jump start on your home's preparations will keep you from burning out early. Clean the house thoroughly a few weeks prior to your big event instead of waiting until the last minute.

Check for any light bulbs that need to be replaced, carpet stains that need treatment and pesky cobwebs in your fixtures. Discard old condiments in the refrigerator and add more to your shopping list.

Baking soda and a warm rag left on a glass cook top for 15 minutes leaves your surface sparkling — no elbow grease required. Don't forget your oven; the self-cleaning option saves you time so you can move on to the next task.

Own the tradition

While the tradition of celebrating holidays is passed down from one generation to the next, there's no need to hide your personal flair. Forgo a traditional centerpiece and create a tablescape reflective of your family's personality instead.

To add dimension to your dessert table, glue candlesticks to mismatched plates to create holiday treat pedestals. You can create centerpieces and personalized place settings out of beads, gourds, holiday baubles and handwritten name cards. Even if your handwriting didn't score an "A," your guests will appreciate the special touch.

Decorate like a pro

A trinket here and garland there can soon lead to decoration overload. Choose a color scheme ahead of time and stick to two or three colors. Decorating with colors that complement your existing decor will bring holiday cheer into your home seamlessly.

If you have outdated decorations that you just can't part with, consider giving them new life with a fresh coat of metallic spray paint. Wrapping gifts with similar colors, ribbons and metallics add the finishing touches to your decorating scheme.

For added cost-savings, potato chip bags turned inside-out can be repurposed as metallic wrapping paper or bows. Cut open the empty bag, wash with soap and water and let dry. Then wrap your present and finish with a colorful ribbon or gift tag.

Satisfy the senses

Add a few drops of essential pine oil to your air filter to keep your home smelling festive even if you have a fake tree. For a softer scent, boil water and add vanilla extract, rosemary and a few lemon slices.

Opt for table lamps in the living room instead of harsh overhead lights. The warm yellow glow will add to the ambiance of candles, fireplaces and twinkling string lights. Finally, have a few family-friendly movies on hand to provide your guests with entertainment and a little down time between dinner and dessert.

Take-home treat trends

Tired of losing Tupperware containers to family and friends who forget to return them? Whether it's Thanksgiving turkey or holiday cookies, you can pack up leftovers in personalized take-out containers and keep your Tupperware safe at home.

Pick up an assortment of blank, disposable take-out boxes from your local craft store and apply adhesive labels. Write your guests' names on the labels and decorate the boxes for the occasion with embellishments and glue. When it's time to fill each box as your guests prepare to leave, keep a marker and extra labels nearby so you can also write down what treats they'll find in each container.

Storage solutions

When the holidays are over, ornaments don't always find their way back to their original packaging. Wreath bags, ornament organizers, dinner plate containers and string light storage bins keep your decorations safe during the off-season.

If you have wrapping paper left over that you'd like to save for next season, cut a toilet paper roll lengthwise and wrap it around the wrapping paper to prevent unraveling. ■
